in Crisis

A culinary experience

Food-ie: *noun informal

'fōodē/

~ a person with a particular interest in food.

Are you a Foodie? Do you ever wonder how easy it might be to create some great dishes yourself? Are you willing to roll up your sleeves and have some fun?!

Geared to individuals in active recovery, Community in Crisis offers you a once-a-week for four weeks culinary experience with two great British chefs, Nick and Martin, both graduates of Westminster College, London, and veterans of the restaurant/hospitality industry.

Classes will include how to create and prepare some awesome dishes from chopping board to kitchen table, such as soups, pastas, family style platters, and dishes to entertain your friends.

Cooking has long been recognized as a therapeutic means of relaxation. Expect a warm and low-key environment, a wealth of learning and skills, lively camaraderie and, like it or not, some rockin' 80s British golden oldies!

Who knows, maybe one day you will learn and love it enough to be the next Bobby Flay or Gordon Ramsey!

All food and equipment costs will be covered by Community in Crisis for this pilot series.
