WHERE YOU'LL STAY

YEAR-ROUND UNITS

Fairview Lake YMCA Camps has three winterized cabin units and a large lodge available for groups. They are separated by wooded areas permitting simultaneous use by several small groups, or your group can rent out the entire unit or the whole side of camp!

The buildings are duplex in style. Each side of a building is identified by a cabin number (listed below). Each cabin has 10-12 built in bunks and its own indoor bathroom. Due to the design of the buildings, coed groups can be easily accommodated. The cabins have heat, electric lights and outlets. Smoke detectors and fire extinguishers are standard in each cabin.

A snack kitchen (refrigerator, stove, sink; no kitchen ware), porch and living room make this a great place for large groups and families. Capacity is 50.

SEASONAL UNITS

Nine cabins nestled on the hillside, each with eight built-in bunks. Delaware has a pavilion area with picnic tables and is near a large athletic field. Cabin capacity is 72 people; tenting is also possible.

Ten Adirondack shelters with two bunk beds each accommodate four people. The unit features its own waterfront, which must be staffed by Fairview Lake lifeguards for use. Cabin capacity is 40 people; tenting is also possible.

Warrior

Six cabins, each with eight built-in bunks. A basketball court, Kittatinny Program Lodge and the Wakigan waterfront are a short walk away. Cabin capacity is 48 people; not suitable for tenting.

Are fires allowed in the units? We ask that guests use the fire rings and provided firewood, located near the units, for campfire needs. Campfires must be coordinated with Fairview Lake YMCA staff.

Are pets allowed at camp? Only certified service animals are allowed at camp, and animals may not be left unattended at any time.

Outdoor Climbing

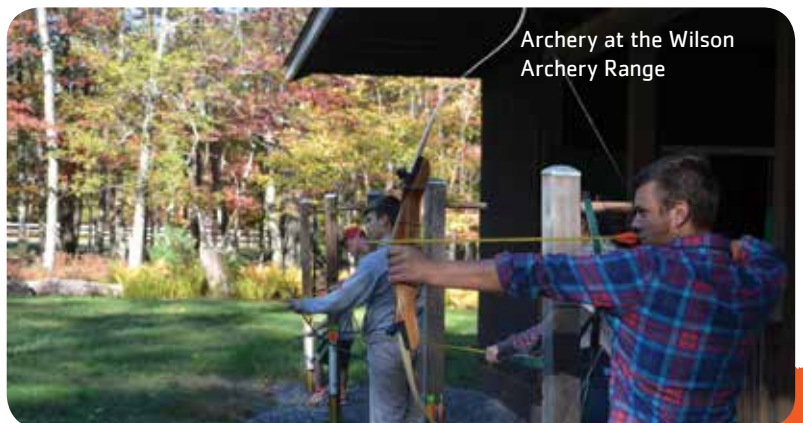

Can I cook my own food at camp? Guests staying in our seasonal units may cook their own food.
